

My Story: Part 8

"Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere. We are caught in an inescapable network of mutuality, tied in a single garment of destiny. Whatever affects one directly, affects all indirectly."

- Martin Luther King, Jr.

"I have always found that mercy bears richer fruits than strict justice."

- Abraham Lincoln

This was the day that long awaited - an interview for a visa to travel to the US. To be honest, the run up to this interview has been plagued with self-doubt, trepidation, sadness, etc. All the worst emotions and the overwhelming fear that the interview would fail.

On 11th August, 2008, this happened. Despite fulfilling all the criteria required for a visa, it was refused. Why? Perhaps my wife's status was to blame and that it was being used to punish us as a family. If so, and it is suspected as being so, it was just another example of how malicious, corrupt and even Satanic the US administration is.

I told the female immigration official that I have a friend in the US who is dying. She is a 'spiritual' sister to me and I a brother to her in the same sense. My 'sister' is now receiving help after again threatening suicide - but she still wishes to see me as she is in so much pain and needs a friend to help her through her torment. I told this immigration official that my possessions were still trapped in the US and I needed to recover them. I also told this immigration official that my wife would not leave the country unless I was by her side. I further told this immigration official that my marriage was in danger and my wife was talking of divorce. Now it seems my marriage is being destroyed as well.

You would think that someone with an ounce of compassion, of common sense and decency, and someone who should know the rules on immigration would help. But not this sick, evil, twisted and insensitive monster. Her stern face and uncompromising attitude made it clear she was going to discriminate against me.

There was no right to appeal. Arbitrary judgement was passed. She decided it was better to continue the degradation and destruction of a human being's life rather than do the right thing and issue a visa. But the negative outcome was expected. US immigration is infested with monsters, ill-educated and inconsiderate robots, corrupt criminals, etc.

A Christian friend wrote recently and expressed exasperation at the attitude of these people. She related how the immigration system in the US (often referred to as the 'INS' - the Immigration & Naturalization Service; and now called the 'USCIS' - United States Citizenship and Immigration Services) tried to improve its image with the American people, but failed. It's said you cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. Trying to make the USCIS anything but what it is, a place where its operatives sell their souls to Satan, have all their humanity removed, and are given so much power they can wreck your life with a stroke of a pen, is impossible. Meanwhile, back in the UK ...

Our letters to the Queen and the Foreign Secretary have not been successful. The Queen has shown the utmost contempt for the safety and welfare of UK nationals abroad. The Foreign Secretary has not even bothered to reply.

So be it. Lines have now been drawn. Being denied basic human rights, being denied any representation or protection while abroad, being treated with contempt to the point where the corrupt and abusive nature of a so-called ally to the UK is ignored - it's not acceptable. There are no longer any rules to play by. No laws to observe. Now anything goes.
